EXODUS FROM NATCHEZ

Only Three Negroes Have Had the Disease So Far.

New Orleans, Aug. 30.—Surgeon White has asked those who conduct private schools and the priests in charge of parochial schools to postpone the opening until October, as has been done by the directors of the public school.

The feature of the news from outside the city was the report of Inspector, who went down Bayou Barrataria and found several infected fishing camps and settlements.

An examination of the nationality of the deaths from yellow fever in New Orleans up to August 27 out of a total of 259, shows 168 Italians, thirty-three French, twenty-five German, twenty-five Americans, four Russians, three negroes and one Greek.

At Clark Chenier he found twelve cases, at Barrataria one case, at Bayou Cholas one case and at Kintin Camp eighteen cases. The State Board has sent a relief expedition of doctors and nurses.

Twenty-eight new cases and one death are reported from other points.

ROOSEVELT THE MAN OF THE HOUR.

Witte Was Amazed When the Japs Accepted His Ultimatum.

Portsmouth, N.H., Aug. 29.—Peace limit our naval power in the Far East, and I have not consented. The Japanese wanted war indemnity or reimbursement of the cost of the war; aye, demand it, and I have not consented. The Japanese wanted the Chinese eastern railway south of Harbin, but I gave them only the railroad in possession of their troops south of Chautafu. The Japanese wanted the Island of Sakhalin, and I refused it, agreeing, however, at the last moment to cede the southern half, and then only because I was commanded by my sovereign to yield and obeyed. Not only do we not pay so much as a kopeck, but we obtain half of Sakhalin, now in their possession. At this morning's meeting I presented my written proposition, which was the Russian ultimatum. It was accepted by the Japanese. I was amazed. Until I was in the conference I did not think that would happen. I could not an-tipicipate such a great and happy issue.

"It was a psychological crisis. I had made up my mind not to strike out a letter of the ultimatum I submitted. So far as I was concerned, it was ended. But I could not tell how it would work on the Japanese mind. It was a complete victory for us.

Roosevelt Given Credit.

Portsmouth, Aug. 30.—Terms of peace were agreed upon at Portsmouth yesterday by the Russian and Japanese envoys, preliminary arrangements for an armistice were concluded and the actual work of framing a treaty of peace was turned over, by mutual agreement, to Mr. De Martens, the Russian lawyer, and Mr. Dennison, the legal adviser of the Japanese Foreign Office. The treaty is expected to be complete by the end of the week. Japan made an agreement possible by yielding on the disputed points. The articles relating to Russia's interned warships and the limitation of her sea power were withdrawn. Japan agreed that only that part of the Chinese Eastern railroad south of Chantfu should be ceded to her, and an agreement was made whereby the Island of Sakhalin is practically neutralized, each country binding itself not to fortify its half of the island. It was also decided to add a broad clause for mutual commercial privileges. The treaty will be a friendly document of such character as to indicate that the two countries have almost laid the foundation for a future alliance. There is, however, no evidence that any secret clauses are to be appended to the treaty.

The news that the envoys had reached an agreement caused great rejoicing in Portsmouth, and such scenes of enthusiasm as followed the return of Russian plenipotentiaries to the hotel were never before witnessed in New Hampshire. Mr. Witte was overjoyed at the unexpected conclusion of the conference, and declared that he had never dreamed of such an outcome. His fellow envoys rejoiced at what they considered a great diplomatic triumph for Russia. Baron Komura, the chief Japanese plenipotentiary, refused to discuss the agreement last night, and Mr. Takahira merely remarked that peace had been made "for the sake of humanity and civilization."

Foreign capitals were surprised at the result of the negotiations and the diplomats of the world very generously accord to President Roosevelt the credit for the successful outcome of the conference.

The news reached Hopkinsville shortly after noon in a telegram from Mr. John C. Latham, of New York, to Mr. Henry C. Gant, who at once turned the telegram over to the Kentuckian and a bulletin announced the news. Everybody was pleased at the friendly outcome and Japan's magnanimity was a subject of universal comment.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.
For Kentucky! Generally fair tonight and Thursday. Not much change in temperature.

Attorney General N. B. Hays has sued the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company for $12,330.80, alleged to be due on franchise taxes of 1902 amounting to $32,000, which were paid only after a decision by the United States Supreme Court.

The United States will recognize the sovereignty of Norway. President Roosevelt is only waiting until some of the first-class European powers recognize her. Recognition by Germany, France, England and United States is expected within a short time.

A serious complication has arisen at Madisonville over the nomination of a city ticket by the city committee in the face of a popular protest signed by 300 Democrats, who demanded either a convention or primary election. The city committee has undoubtedly exercised very questionable authority, as no nominations can be declared by committees except in cases where due notice has been given and there are no contending candidates. The hustler, the organ of the party in the county, refuses to recognize the action of the committee and is demanding that the people begin an opportunity to name their own candidates.

Dr. J. N. McCormack, Secretary of the State Board of Health, says Kentucky will be kept open and all refugees from the South will be given a welcome. In regard to the action proposed at Paducah he says: "I hardly believe that a quarantine will be attempted at Paducah. The relations between Mayor Yeiser and myself have always been most pleasant, and certainly no personal feeling will enter into the discussion of the question. It was the purpose of the General Assembly to secure uniform action in the times of emergency like this, and there has always been, and we hope always will be, the most cordial co-operation between us and the local authorities in all our life-saving work. We certainly have no other interest or desire, and if there is any conflict anywhere it will not be of our seeking."

The Kriesblatt, published in the district of Hochst, Prussia, published the other day this advertisement: "Lost, a perambulator containing a six-months-old baby, the same having been left on Sunday outside a public house in Sosenheim, or possibly in Hochst, or Unterliederbach. On the perambulator cover the following is embroidered: 'Sleep well; mother watches over you.'"

DR. PRESTRIDGE INTERVIEWED.

Discusses the Great Results of the World Congress.

ITS LASTING BENEFITS.

Next Meeting Will be in Philadelphia Five Years Hence.

Rev. J. N. Prestridge, D. D., editor of the Baptist Argus and American Vice President of the recent World's Congress in London, was in the city yesterday, returning from a visit to Dr. J. D. Clardy's in the country, where Mrs. Prestridge is spending the summer. He favored the Kentuckian with the following interview:

Was the Baptist World Congress in London all you hoped for?

"Yes, and more than I hoped for. There were over 4,000 messengers and the program was carried through from first to last with great enthusiasm. The night that the Congress met there was a roll call of the nations and three minutes were given to a selected representative from each land to greet the Congress, and to give a few sentences on the conditions and hopes of its Baptist people. The greeting was generally followed by a verse or two of the national Hymn or some gospel song, often sung in a foreign tongue. At times the enthusiasm ran so high that the immense audience would leap to its feet and cheer and continue cheering. That was a night never to be forgotten.

How did the American Baptists stand in the Congress?

It was, once or twice, almost amusing to see how the English opinion of the American orator or oratory changed. Evidently they expected a rather Fourth-of-July tone and expression, but the greatest English Baptist present and the British Weekly, which is not Baptist, said "expressly that the American speakers appealed more directly to the intellect and spoke with more effectiveness than did the English representatives.

Englishmen, you know, are conservative and not demonstrative, but they broke loose from all restraints, told us that the land was ours including their hearts, and they tried hard to give them into our possession. Yes, both the English and American messengers mingled as if they were members of an Anglo-Saxon Nation. On every opportunity they sought to draw into the closest fellowship. In the opening prayer by President Maclaren he prayed with fervor and tenderness, "especially for our American brethren, who have come in such numbers and who have aided us so greatly in our recent struggles against the oppressive Education Act."

As you look back what stands out most clearly in your mind? What of the whole matter?

"Two things now impress me most. First, the fellowship which I have just mentioned. As Tolstoi has the killing cold to freeze out all difference between a haughty Russian noble and his crushed serf, making them just two men, looking into each other's faces, so the throbbing flame of enthusiasm obliterated all differences and made the mighty audience full of the tenderness and most beautiful unity. Dr. John Clifford, whom the British press calls the greatest Liberal in Great Britain; Dr. Maclaren, England's greatest preacher; Mr. Shakespeare, a descendant of the immortal William, and the managing secretary of the meeting; Baron Uxkill, a nobleman of Russia; two members of Parliament, Justices White and Lloyd George, and other such great men from all lands, became as boon companions with the humblest. There seemed to be one heart beat that throbbed through the great meeting, which grew more manifest and responsive from day to day for the eight days of the meeting.

"The other thing was the summing up more and more clearly of what the Baptist faith is. More and more it dawned upon the audiences that the Baptist faith is founded upon two mighty and conquering principles, towards which all thought and all movements of the new world are tending, yes, rushing. In such an hour a World-Baptist consciousness was born and their mission to the world as a whole seized upon and announced. What are the principles? Just these: That the ultimate outcome by God's uplifting and training of the race, the end of sociology, theology, government and practical religion, is the turning of the race into one brotherhood of free, of kingly individuals, having no sponsors, priests, popes, kings—no masters of any kind; and then that as a united and free brotherhood, absolute loyalty and immediate and exact obedience due to Jesus Christ and His word. He only is King and Lord.

"How such pronouncements did grow bolder and bolder. How the audiences rang out, louder and louder, in applause of them. It was clearly claimed that the unrest in the labor movement, the new nations being born in Japan, China, Russia and in the islands of the seas, were born indirectly, at least, from Baptist principles; that the drift of the world is Baptistwards, and that this is the age for mighty achievements from them. This brought no bitterness to them for other people, but rather gave a new consideration and affections, not only for other denominations, but for those nations which are in travail. Along this line the next Congress, to be held five years from now in Philadelphia, will be held. Already Baptists are beginning to think and plan for that time."

CARD GAME TRAGEDY.

Dig Murray Stabbed to the Heart by Roland Moore.

Nortonville, Ky., Aug. 28.—In a brawl over a game of cards late yesterday afternoon, Roland Moore killed Dig Murray by stabbing him in the heart with a dirk. The killing occurred at the resort of Laffoon & Oats, about half way between here and Chesley. According to the story of an eye-witness, Murray accused Moore of cheating at cards and knocked him down, afterwards kicking him repeatedly. Bystanders remonstrated without effect, and Murray followed Moore, who was trying to get away. He got out of sight of the crowd, but shortly returned. Moore was allowed to pass, but Murray, who was still following, fell and an examination showed a deep dirk wound just over the heart, also several cuts about the ribs. A doctor was sent for, but Murray expired before his arrival. Moore got away and has not yet been arrested. Both men have families.

No Complimentary Tickets to State Fair This Year.

The Board of Control of the Kentucky State Fair met at the office of the Secretary at Lexington last Wednesday. There were a number of quite important matters which came before it, but the most important action taken was one which will beyond question meet the approval of every taxpayer in Kentucky and every one interested in the permanent success of the State Fair. This was a resolution of the board that there should be no complimentary tickets issued for the State Fair.

The resolution as passed provided that not only should there be no complimentary tickets issued, but that there should be no complimentary tickets printed, so that there will be no possibility of any being issued under any circumstances or to any individual.

SOLDIER BOYS AT PADUCAH.

Company D. Very Much In Evidence For General Efficiency.

SITE PLEASES ALL.

The Third Regiment Entitled To Honors For Capable Work.

Camp Yeiser, Paducah, Ky., Aug. 27. HOPKINSVILLE KENTUCKIAN:—

The Third regiment arrived at Paducah on the central time schedule, and detrained in a way that eclipsed the First and Second regiments so far that the people who witnessed the movement readily agreed with themselves as well as with the soldiers that the old Third Kentucky regiment that has been a tried and true veteran regiment ever since she was mustered into the service before the Civil War, is the only regiment of real soldiers in the grand old State we represent.

Co. D. of which Capt. Edward W. Clark is in command, was the first company to detrain and make ready to march to camp.

The first guard mount was far superior to that of any which has been formed by any regiment which has been in camp. The eight companies represented at guard mount there being about forty men of the guard, and from which there were to be two orderlies selected by the regimental adjutant for Col. Commanding Reg. headquarters, and one for Gen. headquarters, both men being selected from Co. D, on their soldierly appearance and neatness of uniform, reflecting one of the most noted honors on Co. D, by taking both orderlies from the grand old company of which we are all proud to the greatest extent.

The boys are greatly pleased with site as it is one of the prettiest and most suitable places in the State.

One of the features the boys enjoy is the daily swim in the lake, which is usually full all the afternoon.

Chaplin Thomas of the 3rd Kentucky, conducted an interesting as well as beneficial service in camp this morning at 11 o'clock.

Dress parade yesterday afternoon was unusually good. The ball park is hardly large enough, but the soldiers by their excellent work made a good showing. It is given up by all the spectators who witnessed the parade that Co. D had the only perfect line in the regiment and is one of the very few companies who are up to the standard of 55 men.

The regiment was inspected this evening by Gen. Percy Haley; Inspector General of Kentucky Noel Gaines; Surgeon Gen. McCormack, and Col. Jouett Henry, and everything was found in perfect condition.

For Sunday: Officer of the day, Capt. R. C. McCracken, Co. F; officer of guard, Lieut. E. M. Scaley; officer of guard, D. H. W. Rogers.

A record breaker.—There is not a man in the guard house, and everything is perfectly quiet in camp.

ALL DAY SERVICES

Will Be Held at Eddyville Penitentiary Sunday.

Next Sunday morning several of our people who are interested in the spiritual welfare of the convicts at Eddyville, will go down on the early I. C. train and hold an all day service in the chapel of the penitentiary. Those having the matter in hand had hoped that Dr. Landreth, of Nashville, would be one of the party, but owing to the press of previous engagements, he will be unable to go. The committee of the prison work for Kentucky intends this year to make greater strides in its work, and appeals to the Christian people to lend their aid in personal work or by their contributions. There seems to be a greater willingness on the part of the workers as well as people generally, to advance the work among those who are suffering the penalty for violation of the laws of our state, and grand results are expected.

It is hoped that members of the different churches will see their duty in this direction and this year aid in every way they can the comparatively few who have taken upon themselves the work of making the burden of the convicts easier by leading them to Christ.

The following ladies and gentlemen will go to Eddyville Sunday: Misses Nannie Long, Mattie Duke, Lucy Starling and Hattie Hale. Messrs. Charlie Duke, Lyne Starling, A. M. Wallis and Mr. Sam George, of Missouri. Miss Jennie Glass, of this city, who has given years of thought and labor to prison work, will also be of the party.

Neck Broken.

Miss Dolley Vannoy, of Stanford, was thrown from a buggy and instantly killed in a runaway at Columbia, Ky. Her neck was broken.

VIOLINIST WEPT

As He Passed His Instrument to Another Owner.

We often wonder at the strong attachment a musician has for his instrument, or a woman for her pet, but all know what love of the old home is. It is natural for mankind to love some person or thing, and even the lower animals are the same way.

A straying musician out of work found his way into Hopkinsville a short time back and about the only thing he had besides his clothing was his old violin. He was not used to manual labor, but he had reached a point in life, as it was "between seasons," when his violin could not earn food or replace his well worn clothing. So he found employment for a few days at the cannery. Such work was distasteful to him, but it was the only employment that he could find, and after figuring out his expenses he found that his board bill too closely approximated his receipts. He probably thought that as the theatrical season was approaching he had better make his way to a larger city where his violin could earn something for him a little above the expenses. He was owing a board bill, and after paying that out of his week's earnings he would not have enough to pay his way to Evansville. He was not a common tramp, he must travel like a man, for stealing rides on trains was something too degrading and dangerous for him to even think of. He must go, but he must part with the dearest thing on this earth to him, his violin. For fourteen years, under the footlights and in the dancing hall, his violin had always answered to his loving touch, and though not winning fame for him, it had furnished him the means of subsistence, talked to him in sweet tones when they were alone and often cheered his drooping spirits. But they must part. Learning that Mr. Jack Meador is not only a fine performer on the violin, but a judge of instruments, he offered to sell him his instrument, but as Mr. Meador is the owner of two splendid violins, he declined to purchase, low as the price of the instrument had been placed by the stranded musician. Mr. Meador gave the distressed and needy musician the names of several persons who might purchase his instrument, but they all declined. Returning to Mr. Meador, he begged of him to take his instrument off his hands. Mr. Meador told him that the violin was worth far more than he offered to part with it for, and he must still refuse. After much pleading, Mr. Meador told him that he was not running a pawnbroker's shop, but he would help him out of his extremity if, when he secured employment, he would send him the money advanced on the instrument. The condition was agreed to, and the stranger tuned the instrument no longer his and with the skill of an artist played his farewell piece, "My Old Kentucky Home," and passed the violin to Mr. Meador, the tears running down his sad face as he parted from his dearest and most constant friend.

Mr. Meador says the man's name was Liebig, and it seemed to him that the old song, so familiar and dear to every Kentuckian's heart, never sounded so sweetly to him before, as the wail of the broken heart of the violinist found its expression through the violin.

LINCOLN'S HOME

Sold to Collier, of Chicago, For $3,600.

Hodgenville, Ky., Aug. 28.—The Abraham Lincoln birthplace was sold at master commissioners sale today at 1 o'clock. There were several bidders from a distance. The price paid was $3,600. The house was bought by R. J. Collier, of Chicago. Mr. Collier has not yet stated what he proposes doing with it, but it was probably bought as an investment.

Up to today the farm had changed hands but twice since Abraham Lincoln was born, Feb. 12, 1809.

All city taxes levied by the board of council of the city of Hopkinsville Ky., for the year 1905 are in my hands for collection and were due on July 1, 1905.

THE SONG SPARROW

ONE OF OUR INTERESTING NORTH AMERICAN BIRDS.

His Cheerful Notes Are the First Heard in the Early Spring —How He Builds His Tiny Nest.

Early in the spring, as early, sometimes, as March 1, or even the latter part of February, those lovers of the open air who are brave enough to tramp abroad through the country fields and lanes, ignoring the discomforts of mud and half-melted snow, will almost surely be rewarded by hearing the first bird-note of the year, the strain of the song sparrow. True, his voice now has not the sweetness or liquid quality that it acquires later in the season, but, nevertheless, the song is indicative of the spirit of the bird, cheerful and seemingly contented under the most trying circumstances. The song sparrow is a bird common throughout the length and breadth of the United States, and even extends its range considerably beyond the boundaries of this country.

Although owing to climatic changes, in different parts of North America, it has a variety of forms (no less than 21), known scientifically as sub-species, still, to all intents and purposes, it is the same bird from Maine to California. In the northeastern states it is one of our commonest songsters, and although the majority of them migrate to a more southern clime in the fall, a number remain with us all the winter; but these are, in all probability, the ones that have summered farther north. At this time of the year, however, our little sparrow is almost entirely silent, seldom ever giving utterance to a chirp, and keeping close to covert, where he can be somewhat protected from the cold winds. We are conscious of his presence only by catching fleeting glimpses of him as he glides from thicket to thicket, or dodges in and out of some brush pile, in color so closely matching the tone of the brush itself as to make him difficult of detection. He is a seed eater, and can always manage, even when the snow is the deepest, to find enough seeds clinging to the dead stalks to keep him in food, so that there is little or no danger of his starving; and although he is more of a summer than a winter bird, he is a hardy little fellow, and his soft, thick feathers seem to be ample protection against even the extremes of cold.

The color of his back, wings and tail is chestnut, streaked in places with gray and black; his under parts are white, with splashes of brown on his throat and chest. Both male and female birds are marked alike, although the markings on the male are a trifle stronger and the general tone of color brighter. His total length from tip of bill to tip of tail is about 6 1/2 inches.

Towards the end of February those individuals of this species that have spent the winter in the south begin to return and join the ranks of those who remained behind. Then does their time of singing commence, to be continued with hardly a cessation—except for a few weeks in August—until nearly the middle of November, for theirs, of all the birds-songs, is the first to be heard in the spring and the last in the fall. The song itself is characteristic, and once heard can never be forgotten, although short and of little variation. The first three or four notes are uttered in a low key, but with increasing emphasis; then with a sudden leap the singer ascends to the key note, sustains it for a couple of counts, drops to a slightly lower key, and suddenly stops, leaving in the mind of the listener the impression that he has failed to complete his performance. The best translation of the song into words is given by one author as "Press-press-press, by-trrrr-rian-ian." April is for the month of love-making, and by May 1 at the latest the birds are mated and must take up the serious cares of life. As a matter of fact, however, the seriousness of life never seems to strike them, and the cares sit but lightly on their shoulders. Especially is this true of the male, for during the entire period of their home life he can always find the time to leave his duties at very frequent intervals, to flit to the topmost branch of some low bush, and there pour forth his dainty little song as though from the absolute joy of living.

The home, a rather compact structure of dead leaves, grasses, strips of grapevine bark, pieces of dead weed stalks and twigs, rootlets and in fact almost any like material, and lined with fine dead grasses and horsehairs, is usually placed on the ground, hidden in a tussock of grass, under a bursh pile, in a fence corner, under the edge of an overhanging bush, or in any such situation that will afford it the proper concealment. Sometimes, but not so frequently, it is built in a low cedar or other evergreen bush, and I have even found a nest placed in the side of a haystack. Two, and sometimes even three, broods are raised in a season, and it is not at all unusual to find occupied nests as late as September.

ALL DELIGHTED.

Trip to the Seashore a Grand Outing.

The two hundred or more pleasure seekers who left for Old Point Comfort, Va., August 12, have returned to their respective homes and happy memories will linger long in the minds of those who took advantage of this most delightful summer outing to the Atlantic coast.

The party, about fifty of whom were from Hopkinsville and vicinity, reached Louisville in time for dinner, and after sight-seeing in that city several hours, got aboard the seashore special which departed for the ocean at 5 o'clock. The train was made up of Pullman cars and two day coaches, all vestibuled, and the trip was made over the Chesapeake & Ohio road, which stands among the first of the country in all that goes to make the physical excellence of a railroad. The train service of this road is up-to-date and represents the acme of elegance, comfort and safety, the cars being constructed on the very latest patterns, combining luxurious ease with stability of construction, and for beauty of scenery its entire length, few, if any railroad routes in this country can equal that of the C. & O.

The tourists reached Old Point on the evening of the 13th and were at once comfortably quartered at the Chamberlin, rooms having been arranged for the entire party before reaching the coast. After a few days spent at Old Point, during which time Norfolk, Newport News, Portsmouth, Virginia Beach, Ocean View and other places of interest were visited, numerous other side trips were taken, including an ocean voyage to New York, and a trip up the Potomac to Washington City. A number came up into the mountains of Virginia, where they spent some time, either at the various springs, or with relatives.

Choice of routes returning was given the excursionists between Richmond and Clifton Forge and some of the party availed themselves of the opportunity to visit Natural Bridge and other points along the James River division of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway.

The main line of the C. & O. road is built upon the trail of the aborigines and the early settlers who penetrated the Alleghany and Blue Ridge mountains and the country traveled has been the theater of two great wars—the war of the revolution and the civil war, and nearly every mile of the road is marked by some event of one conflict or the other. There are scores of points of interest which make a journey over this line a vivid object lesson in American history and one could spend several months along the route and each day find some new point to excite curiosity or admiration. Beyond question it is the most picturesque route of equal length in America, presenting the greatest variety of scenery, each in the highest perfection.

For the past seventeen years these personally conducted excursions have been run annually, and while each one has been a success, none has been more enjoyable than the one operated this year.

Grave Trouble Foreseen.

It needs but little foresight to tell, that when your stomach and liver are badly affected, grave trouble is ahead unless you take the proper medicine for your disease, as Mrs. John A. Young of Clay, N. Y., did. She says: "I had neuralgia of the liver and stomach, my heart was weakened, and I could not eat. I was very bad for a long time, but in Electric Bitters, I found just what I needed, for they quickly relieved and cured me." Best medicine for weak women. Sold under guarantee by R. C. Hardwick druggist, at 50c a bottle.

COMPLETE SUCCESS

Was the Big Horse Show at Pembroke.

Mr. R. Y. Pendleton, of Pembroke, was here yesterday and stated to the Kentuckian that the Pembroke Horse Show last week was a success in every way. It came out ahead financially, which was an important point. The attendance was satisfactory, the exhibits were numerous and of high character and the weather was fine.

Where a stimulant is indicated the doctor prescribes good, pure whiskey. I. W. HARPER is the ideal liquor—none better. Sold by W. R. Long, Hopkinsville, Ky.

LOCAL SQUIBS.

Work was commenced on the septic tank Monday.

It is said that the canning factory had to turn down an order for several thousand cans of corn and tomatoes last week.

If we are to have electric cars, where is the best location for a park? Did you rise early enough yesterday morning to see the eclipse?

We have had very cool nights for nearly a week. Saturday night the mercury dropped to 55 degrees.

Day and night courses at Lock-year's Business College. Term opens Sept. 4th.

The appearance of the passenger station of the L. & N. has been much improved by receiving a fresh coat of paint.

A large force of law-breakers have been doing excellent work on the streets this week.

The expressed intention of the police to enforce the ordinance in regard to fast driving is having its effect. Let us have a tightening of the lines in regard to careless driving also.

Hunt up the old books and be ready to exchange for new ones when the public schools open next Monday.

It is said that the Hopkinsville Canning Company will make quite an addition to its plant and building before the beginning of the next season.

The demand for houses that cannot be supplied ought to induce some one to build several cottages that will rent for from $10 to $13 per month. Should we get electric cars suburban cottages will be greatly in demand.

The fall term of South Kentucky College begins next Tuesday morning. Every room in the boarding department will be occupied, as there will be between 75 and 80 boarding pupils enrolled.

Mosquitoes may not be more than usually plentiful this summer, but it is generally agreed that their sting is more poisonous.

Concrete blocks in large quantities are being delivered preparatory to putting up the walls of the Y. M. C. A. building.

The walls of the immense building of the Imperial Tobacco Company are going up rapidly. Brick masons have been rather scarce here this season and laborers have been hard to secure. There are plenty of them, but they had rather spend their time on the streets eating water-melons.

In a conversation with one of our local physicians the other day he commended what this paper has had to say in regard to people cleaning up their premises. He says that is of the greatest importance and the medical fraternity will endorse every movement made in this direction.

Railroad Agent Hooe expects to get possession of his new freight building in a few days. He is as proud of it as a boy with his first hat. If any one asks you, tell him you have not heard that Mr. Hooe will open up his new quarters with a ball and a banquet.

D. A. R. Meeting.

The Col. John Green Chapter, D. A. R., will hold its regular monthly meeting Saturday, Sept. 2, with Mrs. J. H. Anderson, on South Main street.

State College of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky.

The Agricultural and Mechanical (State College) of Kentucky offers the following courses of study, viz: Agricultural, Horticultural, Chemical, Biological, Mathematical, Physical, Normal School, Classical, Mechanical Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Civil Engineering, and Mining Engineering, each of which extends over four years and leads to a degree. Post graduate studies are also provided, leading to a master's degree. Each course of study is organized under a separate faculty. The general faculty number nearly fifty professors and instructors.

County appointees receive free tuition, room rent in the dormitories, fuel and light, and if they remain ten months, traveling expenses. The laboratories and museums are large, well equipped, comprehensive and modern.

The Legislature appropriated $60,000 for a college home for young women and $30,000 for drill hall and gymnasium for men. Both buildings are completed and in use. Military tactics and science are fully provided for as required by Congress.

Graduates from the several courses of study readily find excellent positions and liberal remuneration. The demand is largely in excess of the ability of the College to supply.

Specialists with the necessary number of assistants have charge of each department of natural science. Summer schools are provided for pedagogy, engineering, instruction in science and in arts.

The State College of Kentucky, though bearing hitherto the title of "college," is the only institution in the Commonwealth doing, in any proper sense, university work.

The completion of the College home for young women provides facilities for good board and lodging. It is equipped with all modern conveniences, including bath rooms and room for physical culture. It is heated by steam and lighted by electricity.

An opportunity is thus afforded to young women of obtaining a thorough education in classics, modern language, literature, science, mathematics, logic, metaphysics, history, and political economy.

No other institution in the State offers advantages for education of women at all comparable to those offered by the State College of Kentucky.

Labor Day—Its History and Significance

Growth of the Labor Sentiment and Organization
Throughout the United States.

Labor day has come generally to be regarded as a national holiday, although, as a matter of fact it is a legal holiday by virtue of the various state and territorial legislatures. In effect, it is a national concession of one day of "pomp and circumstance" in labor's long year of dusty toil. The day has been not only almost universally recognized by the various states and territories, but in the majority of cases, the labor celebrations occur at the same time, on the first Monday in September, a symbol of the general unity of purpose of labor organizations. This concord, which has doubtless done the most to give the day its national aspect, was the result of a resolution offered by George R. Lloyd at a general assembly of the Knights of Labor at New York city in 1884, in effect that all labor parades should thereafter occur on the first Monday in September. This was before labor was accorded the honor of a holiday in any part of the country. After the passage of the resolution workingmen's organizations throughout the land began agitation to induce state legislatures to make the day a legal holiday.

JOHN MITCHELL,
(President of the United Mine Workers of America.)

The Colorado legislature was the first to take action and the first Monday in September, 1887, became, in Colorado, the first legal Labor day ever celebrated. Three or four of the eastern states soon followed and now nearly all of the states and territories have committed themselves.

The present labor movement in the United States and Canada received its first real impetus with the organization of the Knights of Labor in 1869, although the first trades union in the United States was established as early as 1803 by the tailors. Politics at that time appeared to offer the most certain field for labor reforms and political organizations of laboring men were not uncommon at the end of the first quarter of the century. In 1829 a delegate was elected to the New York state assembly on a workingmen's ticket and a few years later the general trades union of New York city was successful in electing its representative to congress. Various minor political movements were coincident, about this time, with the formation of a more concrete labor sentiment, and out of political activity, at different points grew various municipal federations or trades unions. In 1831 a local union of printers was organized and this was followed by the launching of other unions.

A distinctive movement for reform in the line of modern trades unionism

SAMUEL GOMPERS,
(President of the American Federation of Labor.)

was started at Utica, N. Y., in 1834, when at a convention of mechanics a protest was adopted against the employment of prison labor in competition with free workmen. But this mild protest for fairer dealing was followed by few events of importance to labor for 10 or 11 years, at the end of which time the Industrial Congress of the United States was held in New York, in the year 1845. In this year, also, was organized the New England Workingmen's association and the New England Protective union—organizations which appear to have stood for almost everything and anything that promised a change and to membership in which any person of proper age, male or female, was admitted. The wide latitude of these associations apparently did much to encourage the establishment of the numerous narrower and specific trades unions which subsequently sprung up in all parts of the country. Those interested in the labor movement of the time as thinkers and leaders began to perceive in this inclination to narrowness the menace of final dissolution, and the necessity of a national body began again to be discussed. As a result, the National Labor union was organized, but its efforts were largely diverted to political ends, with the result that the hopes of its founders were never realized.

But the seed of organized unionism was sown and was likely to sprout in almost any corner. The organization of the Knights of Labor was perfected in secret in 1869 by the leaders of a dissolved local union of garment workers in Philadelphia. This secrecy, which it was thought best to maintain because labor organizations in the past had failed by reason of the disapproval of employers, was so effectually continued for 13 years that few outsiders fully understood its purpose. Membership in the society grew phenomenally, until 700,000 members were claimed, and branches existed in all parts of the country. Admittance to the order was granted, however, quite promiscuously, and all persons over 16 years of age, except liquor dealers, gamblers, bankers and lawyers were eligible. The government of the organization was vested in local, district, state and national trade assemblies and was of a centralized form. But it did not accomplish the specific results aimed at by the various trades. In course of time, moreover, it adopted a political platform and its aims became too complex and involved to suit some of the local unions.

Seceders from the Knights of Labor and others formed the Amalgamated Labor union and at a convention at Terre Haute, Ind., in 1881, this organization was merged with another of a similar name—the Knights of Industry. At a subsequent convention at Pittsburg in the same year, the name "Federation of Organized Trades and Labor Unions of the United States and Canada" was adopted. This federation in turn merged itself with an independent trades union congress, which met at Columbus, O., in December, 1886, and the joint organization was given the title, the "American Federation of Labor."

HON. VICTOR H. METCALF,
(Secretary Department Commerce and Labor.)

This is the federation which now controls trades unionism in North America and which appears to be a healthier organization than any of its predecessors. It has a membership considerably in excess of 1,000,000 persons—probably 1,200,000—and, according to the last available records, there were affiliated with it 101 national or international unions, 26 state confederations, 476 city central organizations and 1,825 local unions. The American Federation of Labor has for its objects improvement in the conditions of wages and labor, the establishment of self-growing unions of wage workers in every trade and legitimate occupations where none now exists; the securing of favorable legislation; the molding of public opinion on the subject of labor's rights—or rather, perhaps, keeping public opinion from getting "moldy" on that score—and the furtherance of a civilization based upon industrial progress, by securing to toilers a reduction in the hours of labor and alleviation of other pronounced ills.

Although trades unionists deserve the credit for adding a Labor day to the list of our holidays, the day has now a significance beyond that of a mere holiday for organized labor, which, after all, is but one part of the world of commerce and toll to which the day now belongs—not only as a day of recreation, but as a symbol of the public recognition of the honor due to workers, as an indication of the place which honest toil holds in the hearts of the American people. The legislative recognition of the day was without doubt an important factor in paving the way for federal recognition of labor, the climax of which was the act of congress of February, 1903, which provided that the president's cabinet should include the chief of an independent bureau of commerce and labor, whereas the United States department of labor, organized in 1885, had been merely one of the bureaus of the department of the interior.

MY LADY'S HEALTH.

DOUBTLESS health is beyond price, as it is the royal road to beauty. We will endeavor to show you how this great blessing may be cultivated or acquired without wealth. What is it that makes some of our young American women two of Nature's beautifiers, and those who want to have clear skins, bright eyes and rosy color will embrace every opportunity of being in the open air. More important than all of these, is that the young woman or middle-aged woman starts with a healthy womanly system. If she is dragged down or suffers greatly at stated periods, she is bound to have that dragged-out, worn-out look which goes with womanly weakness. But this is not difficult to cure, because a physician, who makes a specialty of diseases of women, has given to the world a medicine which is absolutely a cure for these weaknesses. We mean Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It stands alone as a medicine which has been tested and recommended for the last thirty-eight years. It stands alone as the only medicine now on the market which is guaranteed to contain no alcohol or narcotics of any kind.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.:
"Dear Sir—Your 'Favorite Prescription' brought me safely through that difficult period called change of life. I had hot and cold flashes, sick headaches, became excited, irritable, nervous and irritable. My appetite was flimsy and for days I was unable to eat a fair meal. My aunt recommended me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it made a great change for the better. Within two weeks the unpleasant feelings had disappeared. I have a husband and eight children so have the care of a large family but was able to attend to my household duties without any difficulty and passed the period without any more trouble. I can recommend your 'Favorite Prescription' as a grand medicine for women."

GREAT POWER OF THE "AD"
 Business Men Tell of Early Ventures Which Were Assured of Success by Publicity.

When the business men get together it is impossible for them to avoid for long the subject of advertising and on this absorbing topic many odd stories are told.

Some New York business men were fishing at Anglesea.

"I once advertised," said a contractor, "for a donkey engine. I got the very thing I wanted at a low price, and when I opened the boiler I found it filled to the brim with smuggled Havana cigars and Jamaica rum. I sold the odd cargo for $125."

"I," said John Marks, a man in white linen, "own, as you know, Marks' medicine mill, the only factory of its kind in the world. Our daily output is 2,500,000 pills, 125,000 plasters and 50,000 bottles of pain-killer. How did this mammoth business start? It started with a dollar 'ad.' I was 28 at the time, and I was keeping books at a retail furniture emporium at $7 a week, hours from eight till six. Pretty near sick I was; I had thoughts of suicide; slaving, mind you, ten hours a day, and only $7 to take home to the wife and children on Saturday night.

"I had a recipe for a painkiller, a great medicine made out of herbs that my great-grandfather had gotten from an Indian. To try and make up a back month's rent my wife put up two dozen bottles of the painkiller—it cost her, all told, 50 cents—and I put a dollar of 'ad.' in the paper about what the medicine would do. What happened? A druggist took the two dozen bottles at 50 cents apiece, and ordered six dozen a week till further orders. Further orders a month later were for the doubling of the weekly supply. I soon had to leave the retail furniture emporium. I soon had to hire six girls to help me put up painkiller. And that was my start. I am a millionaire to-day, thanks to a dollar 'ad.'"

"I," said the third fisherman, hauling in a flounder, "made and sold tinned soup for 12 years at an annual profit of $1,500 without advertising. I now advertise my tinned soup—I have been doing so since 1901—and already my annual profit is $15,000."

JAPAN'S BANK DEPOSITS.

System by Which Insular Government Conducts War Is of Great Value.

"Seventy-five per cent. of the Japanese expenditures in the present war with Russia remain in Japan, and, as a result, the deposits in the banks of the island kingdom are larger than they have ever been before," said Franklin B. Morse, son of the first American consul to Osaka, according to the Washington Post.

"The working of this is simple and accounts for the present conditions in Japan. The Japanese army lives on rice and fish. The government has given its orders for these provisions to the farmers and fishermen of Japan, who, when they receive the money, deposit it in bank mostly, and when a national loan is called for are prepared to loan the government the very money that they have been paid. Add to this the fact that all the powder used by the Japs in the field is manufactured at home, and it is evident why there is but 30 per cent. is left to go outside of the country."

Cats in Church.

Most of the churches in Naples have three or four cats attached to them. The cats are kept for the purpose of catching the mice which infest all the ancient Neapolitan buildings. The animals may often be seen walking about among the congregation, or stretched before the altars.

Had to Keep "13."

The owner of a house in a London suburb altered the number 13 to 12A. The borough authorities objected, and though he pleaded that he could not let a house numbered 13, they made him replace the 13 on the door.

A Prosperous Year.

With the most satisfactory revenue for 15 years the New South Wales government will be enabled to reduce the public debt by £300,000 and the floating debt by £100,000, while retaining a substantial sum.

SERVICE ALSO ERRONEOUS.

Another Technical Defect That Killed Tibbs-Clark Contest.

CHAIRM'N OVERLOOKED

No Service Was Had on Chairman West, Head of Both Committees.

The technical error of Mr. H. W. Tibbs' legal advisers in bringing the contest in the First Ward against J. Miller Clark before the city committee, turns out to have been more serious than at first supposed. It has developed that another fatal error was made in the failure to serve the notice on the Chairman of the city committee, who is likewise Chairman of the county committee, the tribunal authorized to hear and determine all contests within the city and county. The service was had upon the Secretary of the city committee, who is not an officer of the county committee, and the contest, therefore, is not legally before the proper committee to try it. As Mr. Tibbs waited until the tenth day to file the contest, the mistake as to jurisdiction leaves him in the attitude of having failed to file his notice before the proper body in time and there is now no time to remedy the defect in procedure.

The publication of the party law bearing on the question in the Kentuckian Tuesday, it seems, was a complete surprise to those who had encouraged Mr. Tibbs to bring the contest. The further information that a second error in service was made, that makes a contest impossible at all, is this morning made known for the first time.

The contest has been settled in advance by technical defects in bringing it.

Mr. Clark's nomination cannot now be brought in question before either committee.

TOBACCO MARKET.

Both Receipts And Sales Now Growing Lighter.

There has been very little doing in any branch of the tobacco business this week. Offerings on the breaks yesterday were not very large and the sales were made up principally of common and medium tobaccos. There has been no material change in price for several weeks.

Some loose tobacco was sold on the floor Tuesday. Loose receipts are light and hogshead receipts have also been small for the past ten days.

MORE CARS!

Having had the biggest sale this year ever made by any firm in Hopkinsville, we were encouraged to order five cars more, later than we usually buy, for the months of August and September.

On this sale we will, on account of the low price we obtained, sell Buggies, Surreys and Phaeton at $5.00 to $20.00 each less than they have ever been sold in the city. Purchasers residing in Todd, Logan, Hopkins, Trigg and Caldwell counties, Ky., and Montgomery county, Tenn., will have their railroad fare both ways paid back to them, upon presentation of this coupon. This sale will continue until October 1st, 1905.
